

To Mr. Ian Campbell

Dear Sir,

Whilst I agree with the list of matters to be taken into account, I am concerned about any cost/benefit analysis which restricts employment and access conditions and the provision of adequate ergonomic furniture & equipment for persons which includes myself with a disability or multiple disabilities solely on the basis of future profitability. Surely any costs in employing disabled people will affect profitability anyway. Shouldn't be up to the willingness of employers to decide whether to undertake these costs.
