

Brief submission

Private companies/persons should have no place in providing human Services. They are governed purely by profit and will only provide the minimum level of service that they can get away with while charging the maximum fee that they can obtain. Government providers of these services provide the best service that they are able to and should be able to do so more reasonably as they do not have to return a profit to owners

Robert Ramsden