

Productivity Commission's Mental Health Inquiry

Dear Commissioners

I am making this submission, with regard, to the report finding that 1.25 million Children in Australia aged 0-3 need to be screened for mental illness.

This is absurd, how can such a test on a young human be performed? Their co-ordination and language is still developing.

Mental, physical and spiritual wellbeing are all interlinked and a healthy diet and plenty of exercise goes a long way to making a happy and healthy human.

Our children need care and support not intervention and especially not drugs.

I see in this report a major flaw, the intention to spend even more money on a system that does not meet the requirements of the population.

We need a new system, one that actually produces results.

Here is an idea "PUT PURPOSE IN EDUCATION" so the children have a reason for learning.

Sean Workman