Dear Commissioners of the Productivity Inquiry into Mental Health.

I am writing to you about the inquiry into
Mental Health

I am extremely concerned about the screening of children 0-3 years of age for mental illness to then be given psychiatric drugs.

I am the grand parent of two girls and the criteria for testing of mental illness seems suspect - as there are no blood tests or scientific tests to be done, which would show any deficiencies the child who was being test could have that could be causing any mental problems like hyper activity which by scientific testing has been shown to result from the ingestion of too much sugar.

I urge your consideration in cancelling the screening + drugging of our children not only between 0-3 years of age but of any age.

kindest Regards

Wayne C Utling
