

Brief submission

It is vital that the Australian Government continues to support Medicare in its current format.

One way of reducing the burden on the public health system, including hospitals is to force individuals earning over $120,000 per year to use private health providers.

Rosanna Commisso