

Medicare equals care for all. It is a basic right for rich or poor. Without Medicare being in public hands poorer people the elderly young families and the chronically ill will not be able to afford timely health care. Without affordable quality health care the great number of fellow citizens would get sicker and the nation would be poorer for it. Private companies are about profits for their investors not about the health of the masses.

Miriam Mccluskey