

Dear Productivity Commission,

I am writing to you about the inquiry into Mental Health. As regards to screening and drugging our children, I completely disagree with it. I am a mother and have a beautiful grown up child who did not need any screening or any medications. Are there any tests done on any children that this program effective? The screening questions which contain symptoms such as irregular feeding, difficulty sleeping, whining, crying, temper tantrums, shyness, sleeping with the light on and hyperactivity are such normal reactions of any children. I don't see that any mother should allow this to happen

Ramnaree Chinnvaran.