

Brief submission

Letting private providers run Medicare could result in a two-tier medical system where only those with money could afford adequate treatment and more remote areas might not be able to get the GPs they need. Profit-driven health care could also restrict access and quality of care and lead to cost-cutting and outsourcing of care. This system crippled American healthcare and Australia does not want to go the same way!

Barbara Gruner