

As a mother grandmother and great grandmother I would like to protest the potential screening of 0-3 year olds for “social and emotional well-being “ aka mental illness.

My opinion is that this is just a play on words to make the terminology more acceptable to parents and those not so educated in the facts

I would like to bring to your attention a book written by Aldus Huxley “Brave New World “ which warned of the outcomes of such a scenario

I fear we are heading truly into something like this

I would also recommend that existing funding should be re-directed into scientific based programs which are proven to actually help our vulnerable children.
