SUMMARY

Thread Together was founded in 2012 by Andie Halas.

Thread Together is run by CEO Anthony Chesler.

Thread Together is a world first organisation and is increasingly recognised as the most ethical solution to managing the issue of surplus end of line stock.

Our service solves two problems – protecting the planet by saving clothing from landfill and helping vulnerable people, restoring dignity and choice by giving them access to new clothing.

KEY STATISTICS

13.4 % of Australians are living below the poverty line, equating to around 3.2 million Australians.

1 in 8 Australian adults and 1 in 6 Australian children do not have access to adequate essential clothing, which we believe is a basic human right.

A wardrobe of clothing consists of around 20-35 items, depending on the circumstances of the individual.

It costs $5 to provide a complete wardrobe of clothing & accessories to one person

We are supporting around 2,500 individuals with clothing every week

1,000+ Fashion partners donating clothing and providing other support

We partner with 1,000+ Charities and Social Service agencies nationwide

15-20 volunteers a day, up to 6 days a week helping to sort, pick & pack orders

SUSTAINABILITY

Thread Together is the most ethical response to excess fashion waste in Australia

30% of fashion manufactured is unsold and is either disposed of in landfill or incinerated

We divert 700+ tonnes of new fashion from landfill each year – over 5.5m pieces so far

FUNDING

Thread Together receives no government funding, our organisation is built on the fashion donors, financial supporters, charity and social agencies, and volunteers who all play a vital role in helping us to do the work we do.

Having fashion brands support Thread Together with funds is essential to fulfilling our services to the vulnerable communities.

We also rely on corporate teams and groups of volunteers who help at our warehouse to enable us to distribute clothing as quickly as possible.
