Dear Productivity Commissioner,

I am writing to you in regards to the mental Health Act and the Screening of Zero to three year olds. which is being proposed.

The Symptoms listed as psychiatric disorders for this age group mentions behaviours such as crying, feeding difficulties and temper tantrums, to name a few.

Considering any strong psychiatric drugs to aid these young children with what are actually natural behaviours is very sad & extremely excessive.

It's an unnecessary Screening which needs re considering and I urge you not to do this as it will be detrimental to our younger generations of Australians.

Yours Sincerely

P. Barkus
