

Brief submission

I am concerned about private providers increasingly providing health services due to the decreased education opportunities for new health graduates in public hospitals. Private hospitals generally look after less unwell patients, due to this the funding for these patients goes with them leaving less funding to for staff allocation for complex care of very sick patients.

Cheryl McCarthy