

Productivity Commission Inquiry into the increased application of competition, contestability and informed user choice to human services

I work with intellectual disabilities for over 25 years.

Large private practice needs, are more about investors than the non for profit model. I am mostly concerned about the impact on the lives of people and their real need for consistency in a service, constant changes bring about uncertain,destabilizing factors on their own home life and this environment needs to be consistent and stable to be able to cope with life, undue stress has and impact to all that work under the one umbrella in this industry.
