It's very important to keep medical care assessable to everyone. We pay our taxes and our levies. It would just take a small increase in the levy to increase revenue and I'm sure people wouldn't object too much if it was going in the health system. The politicians wouldn't know what real life is like, they are guaranteed top health cover just for turning up and sometimes not turning up for work along with all the perks they get without the effort, silverspooners, who need to wake up.
