

Productivity Commission inquiry into Australia's Superannuation System
third stage review

* * * *

I have made repeated approaches to the Federal Government seeking a review to the restriction currently applying to the Bring-Forward Rule as it applies to Non-Concessional Contributions that are NOT able to be made by Australians aged 65 years or over. The Government has been unresponsive.

My understanding is that the below comment was made in late May 2018 by Productivity Commission deputy chair Ms Karen Chester in respect of the PC's Draft Report into Australia's Superannuation System.

"The main objective of the super system in accumulation is to make sure that members retire with the biggest balance possible" Ms Chester said.

My submission is made in the hope that my concerns as outlined here and in the three accompanying attachments will be able to be addressed, referenced and commented on in the final report to the Government.

With kind regards.

Phil Hudson.
