

I am a maternal and child Health Nurse and has been 20 years in my practice. I value the pre-requisite of Midwifery qualification for this practice because it has given me a lot of insights of the needs for post-partum women especially for a childless person like myself. One can empathize to a certain extent but the complications following childbirth needs more than empathy that the care women require.

General Nursing together with Midwifery qualifications should not only be required in Victoria but other states as well.

Please do re-consider the importance and the value of Midwifery qualification for the Maternal and Child Health Practice which impacts the good outcome of the future generation.

Thank you
Mee Choo
