

Re Wheat Export

- The effectiveness of the arrangements in meeting the objectives of the Act, including the role of Wheat Exports Australia;

These are not very good as there to many individual Wheat exporters and they are causing delays in filling the boats so it is causing ships to bank up at the ports.

- The suitability of the eligibility criteria for accreditation of exporters;

We beleive at this stage anyone can get an export licence.

- The effectiveness of, and level of competition in, the transport and storage supply chain for wheat; and

Transport of Wheat to port doesnt seem to be very arganiized as at our terminal the trains only come at night and at weekend to load wheat,why dont they come every day during the week. This at the weekend would be higher pay for the workers and train

- The availability and transparency of market information.

Always plenty of that and it is always in their favour how good they are.

In just the short time that the Single Desk was scrapped the wheat has gone from profit to loss this year and next year it will be a lot lower in price. Dont just blame the world ressession for this ,we the farmer knew this would happen that is why the Single Desk was brought in in the first place to stabilize the industry. When something was so good why interfere with it
