(a) Geographical data areas are based on the Rural, Remote and Metropolitan Area (RRMA) classification (DPIE and DSHS 1994). Data are classified according to an index of remoteness which rates each Statistical Local Area (SLA) based on the number and size of towns, the distance to major towns and urban centres, and population densities. It classifies areas into three groups:

- Metropolitan areas: comprise State/Territory capital cities (based on the ABS capital city Statistical Division) and urban centres with 100 000 people more, such as Geelong, Gold Coast, Townsville, Newcastle and Wollongong.
- Rural areas: have several large towns with between 10 000 and 99 999 people; and
- Remote areas: have few large towns with more than 5000 and there are great distances between centres and other SLAs.

– Nil or rounded to zero.

(c) Differences in average annual subsidies reflect differences in subsidy rates as well as differences in the dependency of residents.

(c) This table differs from table 12A.12, which refers to 'residents'.

(d) Multipurpose and flexible services included for 1999–2002.

(e) Government planning targets are based on providing 100 places per 1000 people aged 70 years and over. However, in recognition of poorer health among Indigenous communities, planning in some cases also takes account of the Indigenous population aged 50–69 years. This means that the provision ratio based on the population aged 70 years and over will appear high in areas with a high Indigenous population (such as the NT).

(a) At 30 June.

(b) Places do not include those that have been 'approved' but are not yet operational.

(c) This table differs from table 12A.12, which refers to 'residents'.

(d) Multipurpose and flexible services included for 1999–2002.

(e) Government planning targets are based on providing 100 places per 1000 people aged 70 years and over. However, in recognition of poorer health among Indigenous communities, planning in some cases also takes account of the Indigenous population aged 50–69 years.

(e) The ACT has a very small Indigenous population aged over 50 years and a small number of CACP packages will result in a very high provision ratio. Consequently, the ACT CACP figures are not reliable and have not been reported.

(a) DVA became responsible for the subsidy for most categories of veterans in residential aged care facilities, including Gold and White card holders, following the 1997 reforms of the Commonwealth Residential Aged Care Program. Prior to these reforms DVA held the appropriation for limited categories of veterans and war widows in nursing homes, but not in hostels.

(b) The Residential Care Development Scheme was part of the Veterans and Community Grants Program administered by DVA. Grants were paid to Ex-Service Organisations and Community Based Organisations with significant numbers of veterans as clients, in order to improve aged care services to veterans. This program included capital funding for residential aged care facilities to upgrade buildings to meet certification regulations, funding for consultants to assist residential care providers to improve their management structures to meet accreditation; funding for upgrades to accommodate dementia care; funding for new places and also for Community Aged Care Packages. Data are not available on the individual numbers of veterans who have benefited from this program. The Residential Care Development Scheme lapsed on 30 June 2002.
